

Thank you for your interest in the Touch (Therapy of Unique Canine Helpers) and/or PAWS for Reading Programs, offered through Duo! Enclosed is pertinent information regarding the Touch Program. It contains criteria for participation, answers to frequently asked questions, and an application. If you are interested in participation, please complete the application and return to Duo at your convenience. Your application will be held for the next scheduled temperament evaluation.

Once we receive the required application and documentation (see below), we will contact you to schedule a specific time for you to come during the next scheduled evaluation. The evaluations will test your dog's overall temperament, obedience level, and their reaction to noise and sound stimuli often encountered in facilities. We will also evaluate your dog's willingness to be Touched, as well as how you and your dog work together.

General traits we are looking for in potential Touch Therapy Dogs:

- Confident
- Calm
- Comfortable in new environments
- Obedient

Dogs that display the following traits do not have the appropriate temperament for pet therapy, and our evaluators will explain why your dog cannot continue in our Touch Program:

- Any aggressive behavior, toward people or another dog, which includes lunging, growling, snarling, biting, and/or excessive barking
- Reactions of extreme fear or physical dominance
- Submissive urination, marking behavior of any kind, or defecation

You must be able to attend classes on a weekly basis for the entire session. Should you be unable to attend the classes, your name will be held for the next scheduled class. Evaluations are good for one year from the date performed.

Prior to scheduling your temperament evaluation, your dog needs to meet the following criteria.

- Must have completed a 6 week adult basic obedience course/group class with you as the handler – submit proof of completion with application (a copy is fine)
- Must have been in the care and possession of the owner for at least one year
- Must be between 2 and 10 years of age at the time of evaluation
- Must have received no protection training or other types of training designed to illicit aggressive behavior
- Must not be certified as an assistance/service/support dog

Should you have any questions, please call me at (314) 997-2325 ext. 3116 or email me at LRUSSELL@supportdogs.org.

Sincerely,

Lauren Russell

Program Descriptions, Criteria, and Information

For your information, the guidelines of the program have been established for the well-being and safety of the dog, handler, and all those that receive visits. In addition, by having these guidelines in place, each team will have more confidence, success, and fun while participating in the program!

What is the Touch Program?

Touch (Therapy of Unique Canine Helpers) is a volunteer-based program, which involves people and their personal canine pets (dogs). After receiving training and certification through Duo, Touch teams are able to visit hospitals, nursing homes, rehabilitation units, day programs, special schools, and various other types of healthcare facilities.

Started in 1989, the Touch Program reaches thousands of patients/residents each month in multiple sites in the St. Louis Metropolitan area (including Illinois). While Duo has over 280 active teams, there is always a need for more.

Only dogs that are accepting of people and other dogs, are calm and stable, and have predictable behavior in a variety of circumstances can participate.

All dogs must have completed a formal adult basic obedience course with you (puppy classes do not satisfy this requirement). Dogs benefit from the experience of the formal class setting because not only do they learn how to work effectively with their handler, they learn how to focus on their handler in high distraction environments, and they receive the experience of being around other dogs in a formal (non-recreational) setting. This experience is necessary since Touch teams work with each other in a limited space in class, as well as in certain facilities.

The program is not breed, size, or gender specific. Dogs are chosen based on their temperament, personality, obedience skills and willingness to work with their handlers in sometimes awkward and stressful situations.

The temperament/obedience evaluation

Not all dogs are suited to work in pet therapy. Duo administers an evaluation to determine the dog's suitability for the Touch Program.

To participate in the evaluation, the handler will be required to provide proof of vaccinations, pertinent health information, and proof of adult obedience training – please submit with application. The staff will review this information to ensure the dog is medically sound before they begin the evaluation. The evaluation will gauge how well the handler and dog work together as a team, the level of obedience skills, the dog's confidence level, reactions to sight and sound distractions, as well as the dog's acceptance of being handled from head to tail. The evaluation is designed to test the dog's reactions in situations that could sometimes be stressful and uncomfortable. It is acceptable for the dog to react, but the dog needs to recover from the stimuli and not completely shut down. Once the dog passes, the handler and dog will be scheduled to begin our Touch Therapy classes.

The Instructional Course, Funding and Expenses - See "Course Breakdown and Fees" page

Classes are held at the Duo facility and are held throughout the year. Evening classes and morning classes are offered to accommodate work/personal schedules. Additional classes may be added to accommodate larger class sizes. Handlers choose which class best suits their schedule. Class size will be limited to 8 dogs, and are filled on a first come first served basis.

Handlers will receive instruction on visitation policies and procedures, dog handling guidelines, infection control, grooming requirements, and canine stress identification and management. The segmented course also includes advanced obedience skills, distraction training, management and control skills, food aversion, patient scenarios, and exposure and techniques in working around certain medical equipment. The handler will be required to make observation visits and hand in weekly homework during the course. The entirety of the course is designed to prepare the dog and handler for as many different situations and facilities as possible so they will be comfortable once they start visiting on their own.

At the end of the class, the handler will be required to pass a written test, as well as final performance evaluation for the handler and dog. Handlers must complete all requirements of the class to graduate.

Duo asks for a program fee per segment/class, which covers the cost of the training, materials, and equipment needed for each class. Funding for the program comes from private and corporate donations, as well as the United Way of Greater St. Louis.

Handler Requirements

All handlers must be over 18-years-of-age and willing to abide by the rules and guidelines established to provide a safe and pleasant visiting experience for everyone involved.

Handlers must agree to participate in at least two visits per month to retain active status. Handlers must agree to the Volunteer Code of Ethics, Confidentiality, and Visitation Guidelines to be considered for the program. Some facilities require additional training or have special requests of volunteers. Volunteers will be notified of these if they plan on visiting that particular facility.

Successful completion of each segment determines the facilities and types of patients/residents that a team will be able to visit. All certified handlers must realize that any damage or harm caused by the dog during a visit or other scheduled event for Duo is the responsibility of the handler, not Duo

The Paws for Reading Program

Many applicants to the Touch Program and to Duo are interested in participating in the Paws for Reading Program – a program that places dogs in the classrooms or libraries to help children read, increasing their reading levels, their interest in reading, and overall self-esteem.

To be certified for the Paws for Reading Program, applicants will need to successfully complete that segment of the classes. Once the team is certified, they will be eligible to take the dog into select schools and libraries in the area where this program has been established.

- Volunteers take their dogs into the schools once a week or once every other week, depending on the needs of the school. Dogs typically spend an hour in the classroom, having the children read to the dog, journal about the dog, or participate in other activities under the guidance of the teacher. The schools in the program typically have a population that strongly benefits from the program because of student demographics. There may be opportunities for participation in area libraries and in facilities other than schools throughout the year.

Volunteers need to have daytime availability, as well as flexibility to travel within 25 miles from their home to participate in the Paws for Reading Program. This program typically runs in schools from September through May, to coincide with most school schedules, and libraries will have special events and programs throughout the year.
